Maya loved the early mornings when the world was quiet and still. She would wake up before the sun, tiptoeing through her house to avoid waking her family. The kitchen was her favorite place at that hour, where she could sit by the window with a warm cup of tea and watch the sky slowly change colors.

As the sun began to rise, the birds would start singing, and Maya felt like she was the only person in the world who could hear their songs. She loved the way the sunlight filtered through the trees, casting long shadows on the ground. On some mornings, the dew on the grass sparkled like tiny diamonds, and she would take a deep breath, filling her lungs with the crisp, fresh air.

Maya cherished these moments of solitude. They gave her a sense of peace and clarity that she carried with her throughout the day. By the time the rest of her family woke up, she was ready to face whatever the day had in store for her, energized and calm.
